DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-4, 9-13, 15, 17 and 19-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Swapp in view of Oh.

There is disclosed in Swapp an embossing roller comprising: a cover/handle assembly 7, 9, 65 with multiple hand placement possibilities, the cover/handle further comprising an attachment 8 for an embossing wheel, the embossing wheel comprising a cylinder 2, the cover/handle member draping over the embossing wheel (when so positioned by the user) and attaching to the embossing wheel at a center-rotating axis 55, 56 of the wheel, the embossing wheel comprising an embossing pattern 28, 29 oriented on a rolling surface of the wheel, the embossing pattern assembly able to be changed for different embossing patterns and is height adjustable, the cover/handle further comprises an attachment 33 for a coloring device 30, wherein the roller further comprises an orienting mark 61 that indicates a starting point of the embossing pattern.

Oh teaches that it is known in the art to have a cover/handle assembly wherein the cover encloses a top and portions of the sides of a printing wheel, and has a handle which extends in a direction parallel to a direction of movement of the wheel.

It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to modify the cover/handle assembly of Swapp with that taught in Oh, so as to provide a more comfortable grip and contain any splashing of ink during use.

In regards to the use of the device with a food product, such is intended use and provides no structural limitations to the claims.

In regards to claim 22, the method at which the embossing pattern is placed upon the wheel is not germane to the issue of patentability of the device itself. Therefore, this limitation has not been given patentable weight.

Claims 7, 16 and 23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Swapp in view of Oh as applied to claims above, and further in view of Kuzyk.

Kuzyk discloses a cutting blade along with a roller device. It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to provide the device of Swapp, as modified by Oh, with the cutting blade of Kuzyk, in order to cut the surface which is being embossed.

Claim 28 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Swapp in view of Kordic et al.

Swapp, as discussed above, discloses all of the claimed subject matter except a food product having a surface capable of being incused with a three dimensional pattern.

Kordic discloses a pizza dough 33 having a three dimensional pattern thereon and a device 10 for creating the pattern.

It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to provide the device of Swapp with the food product (dough) disclosed in Kordic, for the purpose of having something to imprint images thereon.

Claim 28 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Blaul in view of Swapp.

Blaul discloses a roller assembly for imprinting a pattern on a food product (dough), the assembly including a wheel (roller) and embossing pattern oriented thereon, the pattern being able to be changed, and a dough.

Swapp, as discussed above, discloses all of the structural limitations of the roller assembly.

It would have been obvious to substitute the roller assembly of Blaul with that taught in Swapp, for the purpose of providing an alternative means for imprinting on the dough.

Claim 28 merely recites a food product along with elements of a device which can be used with the food product, there is nothing limiting in the claim which would require use of the device only with food products.
